

Kindergarten

Summer Packet

Name:

I also wanted to give a few tips and activities that will help your child be prepared for the beginning of kindergarten. As you know, our math curriculum is a year ahead so your child will be learning first grade math. At the beginning of kindergarten, I try to do an extensive review of what they should have learned to make sure they are ready for the new material. If your child enters kindergarten knowing these concepts, I am very confident that they will excel ☺

- Recognizing numbers 1-100: They should be able to look at the number (out of order) and say what that number is (this will be VERY beneficial! They should at least be able to recognize 1-30 without difficulty before beginning Kindergarten) (Also, a good way to practice this concept is by using flashcards and having your child tell you the number)
- Skip counting by 5s and 10s
- Basic addition

Though most children entering kindergarten do not know how to read, I highly encourage you to help your child develop a love of reading and get them to enjoy kindergarten. I am including a few book suggestions for your reference however, you can use any book that is appropriate for your child's ability.

- Bob Books- First Stories
- Books from the "I Can Read" series (This series has books of all reading levels so make sure to choose books that are at your child's reading level. I would recommend choosing from My First: SHARED READING or Level 1: BEGINNING READING)

Have your child read a few of these books and complete the worksheets attached in this packet.
